FEW NAZI RAIDERS ABLE TO PENETRATE TO CENTRAL LONDON

Forty-Seven Enemy Aircraft Shot Down During Daylight Attacks by Waves of Planes—Liverpool Among Other Areas Bombed—Shell-fires Exchanged Over English Channel

LONDON, Oct. 1 (Tues.)—British planes, patrolling the air lanes over London, today helped hold off Nazi raiders from the central area on the twenty-four consecutive night of air siege and forced them to unload their bombs on the city's outskirts. During yesterday the British defences shot down forty-seven planes, the R.A.F. losing twenty-two. Twelve of the pilots were able to save themselves.

Groups of enemy planes there were more than usual, tried time and again to penetrate the inner defences at night but only the occasional raider broke through. None remained long and few dropped bombs.

Clusters of searchlights pierced the inky blackness, marking the presence of the bombs for the benefit of the ground guns and the night patrollers high above.

MANY POINTS BOMBED

Bombs were dropped in widely-separated areas around London, some falling in the northern suburbs, others to the southward and southwest. The Press Association reported twenty-seven points in the London area where bombs were dropped.

Raiders were active in other parts of Britain. They returned for the third successive night to a Merseyside town, releasing a large number of incendiary bombs. All fell in streets or gardens and there was no damage.

The fighters used over London dived back and forth, the familiar sound of their engines clearly heard, ready to aid ground batteries and searchlights trap the weary raiders.

They went into action after a day marked by six mass air attacks.

DEMAND RIGHTS FROM SYRIANS

Italians Seek Privileges Aiming at Axis Control of Territory

CAIRO, Sept. 30 (CP)—Authentic reports reaching here said the first demands aiming at Axis control of Syria had been made by an Italian armistice committee.

Among the demands, the report said, were that permission to enter Syria be granted some Germans and Italians, who either were forced to leave or chose to leave Egypt, Iraq and other Arab countries at the outbreak of the war.

Some of these are known propaganda agents, for whose active complete freedom from interference by French authorities is said to be demanded.

OTHER DEMANDS

Other reported demands include permission for a number of Arabs now in Europe, also described as propaganda agents, to enter Syria indefinitely still flies his own plane. His only son is a pilot in the R.A.F.

AIR LEADER IS HONORED

High Order Bestowed on Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding

LONDON, Sept. 30 (CP)—One of Britain's highest orders was bestowed tonight on Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, chief of the Royal Air Force Fighter Command which has played the foremost role in the defense of Britain against Nazi air power.

The King made him a Knight Grand Cross of the military division of the Order of the Bath.

Sir Hugh Caswall Tremaine Dowding is a tall, ineradicable Scot, man referred to as "Stuff" by his junior officers who idolize him.

It was through his insistence that the British Air Council put eight synchronized machine-guns on British fighter plane twice as many as Nazi fighters carry. This has been an important factor in British superiority in daylight battles.

PILOT PROTECTION

He also sponsored the decision to place the cockpit behind the engine, where the pilot would have the most protection. And on his own initiative he worked for a year with a firm of glass manufacturers until a pilot's windshield that would withstand machine-gun bullets was devised.

He was a member of the Royal Flying Corps in the last war and a night-fighter still flies his own plane. His only son is a pilot in the R.A.F.

"Nursery Expresses" Provide Gay Rather Than Sad Scenes as Parents Travel With Children —Numbers Have Lost All Possessions

By GODFREY P. ANDERSON

LONDON, Sept. 30 (P.)—Crowded "nursery expresses," carrying thousands of children to havens removed from the day-and-night peril of bursting bombs, pull out of the great London railroad stations one after another—but this time there are smiles, instead of tears.

"Mummy's coming too," is the smoking rubble. But they maintain their spirits. I know, because I have just traveled 500 miles with them, and seldom have I enjoyed a journey more.

Many of the children had been removed early in the war, but they were brought back by their parents when London itself was not bombed.

Then they wept at the separation. Today they are gay as larks.

TWO SOLDIERS HURT IN CRASH

Collision Between Car and Motorcycle Reported at Craigflower Bridge

Pte. Harry B. Rowley, Ifley, Saskatchewan, and Pte. J. H. Wilson, Nelson, both members of the machine-gun section of the 2nd Battalion, The Canadian Scottish Regiment, received injuries requiring hospital attention when their motorcycle and sidecar was in collision with a passenger vehicle driven by John A. Mackenzie of Albert Head, shortly before 1 p.m. yesterday.

The accident took place at the intersection of the Island Highway with Admirals Road at Craigflower Bridge, both men receiving their injuries when the motorcycle and sidecar turned over.

TWO MEN HURT

Pte. Rowley was removed in an unconscious condition to a military hospital at Work Point Barracks, suffering from concussion and leg injuries, when the sidecar was partly crushed. Pte. Wilson, riding the motorcycle, was injured about the legs and back, receiving treatment at a nearby camp before being taken to hospital. At a late hour last night both men were reported to be doing as well as could be expected.

Sergeant G. A. Johnson and Constable F. Clark, of the Island Division of the Provincial Police, attended and rendered aid to the two injured men. Pte. Rowley, who is married, was still unconscious several hours after the accident, and it was believed his injuries may prove to be severe. More exposed in the shock of impact. Leg fractures were suspected, on top of concussion.

Mr. Mackenzie was on his way towards the city at the time, and the soldiers were driving out to camp. The collision took place on the curve north of Craigflower, the two vehicles coming to rest some distance apart. Military authorities commenced their investigation immediately.

FEW NAZI RAIDERS PENETRATE DEFENCES

On Britain, which were broken up by the Royal Air Force. Germany was estimated to have sent over from 600 to 700 raiders.

Raiders reaching Central London during the night had to pass through a "bridal arch" of searchlight beams, while hundreds of shells burst in brilliant display along their path.

Again and again they twisted and turned. Sometimes they found the barrage too hot, turned and made off in a hurry.

A few bombs dropped in Central London but most of the activity was confined to the suburbs.

Mondays large-scale German attacks came after a quiet week-end.

BATTLE OVER DUNGENESS

The largest daytime attack was staged in the early afternoon, when about 180 planes came over Dungeness. They were broken up before reaching London but a few raiders dropped bombs on the western suburbs, causing some damage and casualties.

In the late-afternoon two bombs were dropped on a North London district.

Raiders penetrated the London area in Monday morning's attacks, when bombs were splattered about Southeastern England. Damage and casualties were reported in Beckenham and Hastings.

Royal Air Force fighters and anti-aircraft defences were constantly in action. Many battles were fought over the metropolis and white trails of exhaust smoke were visible in the blue gaps between the clouds.

Five houses in a residential area of a southeast town were destroyed by high explosive bombs. There were no casualties. A bomb scored a direct hit on an Anderson shelter but the occupants had left a few minutes earlier for a cup of tea.

BIG MUS IN ACTION

Monday's fighting was enlivened by a spirited, British-initiated fight between rival big guns across the English Channel.

Late reports from Dover said fires believed to have been started at Calais by the British shelling cast a brilliant rainbow hue over the straits. At sunset building on the French waterfront could be picked out easily with the naked eye from the English coast.

When darkness settled large, low-hanging clouds, portending stormy weather for any immediate invasion attempt, were driven across the sky before a chilly northeast wind.

German shore batteries on the French side, countering the British shelling, killed one man and injured many during a heavy, hour and a half bombardment of Dover.

The night's raids over London followed the Germans' usual custom of spraying oil bombs in Western London in an attempt to illuminate targets for later waves of bombers. Firemen quickly tackled the fires before they spread.

The Germans, using an aversion of time-worn ground cavalry tactics, sent over swarms of fighters in an effort to clear the way for their bigger and slower bombers.

This new effort, neutral air attacks had been used with increasing frequency during the last few days. In an attempt to offset the failure of night raiders to hit military targets consistently,

A secondary objective, it was explained, is to attempt to force the R.A.F. to "pack" London and Southeastern areas with fighter planes at the expense of the industrial centers in the Midlands and Wales.

British military commentators expressed belief these tactics have failed, and asserted that the R.A.F. is in a better position than before the start of the aerial siege of September 7.

PLAY-BY-PLAY

Using prize ring terminology, the Air Ministry news service last night gave this play-by-play description of the day's mass attacks by Nazi raiders:

"The enemy opened with a right towards London about 9:15 a.m. and another stab in the same direction followed about an hour later.

"Both largely were felts, probably to wear out our fighters. In neither case was the attempt to reach London a success.

"Next came a left towards the west country, which was a tentative jab rather than a full-hearted blow."

"In this raid some seventy bombers and fighters crossed the coast between St. Albans' and Portland, spreading fanwise over Dorset and Somerset."

"About noon a new blow was struck with some 180 to 200 planes, though the main body of 120 German craft reached no farther than a line of North Downs; although a few got through to London, where dog fights ensued over the centre of the city.

HUNDREDS MORE

"At tea time another 200 to 300 came over, but only a few got through to London, where some bombs were dropped."

"It was just about a half-hour later that the Germans struck out with what the Air Ministry described as their "left jab" towards Portland and Bristol."

"Throughout the afternoon until nightfall, squadrons of Spitfires and Hurricane fighters scattered groups of Nazi Messerschmitts and Doorniks all along the coast and in many cases pursued the raiders all the way back to France."

"A serious fire in the city of London, a number of persons killed or injured in residential districts of the capital and several large fires in Merseyside—the shipping and shipbuilding sections of Liverpool—marked German air raids on Great Britain during Sunday night, the Government announced yesterday.

FIRE UNDER CONTROL

The fire in the financial centre of the capital was a serious one, but is now under control," said a communiqué of the Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security.

In the course of a night attack on the Mersey side, two auxiliary firemen were killed and three injured when caught in falling debris in a warehouse fire. Waves of planes bombed, fired and damaged three churches, a convent school, a garage, a laundry and many working class houses.

The nurses' home at Cap Gris Nez, in western suburb of London which was bombed during the night will have to be rebuilt. Twenty nurses who ordinarily occupy it were on duty at the hospital, and escaped unhurt.

The Air Ministry declared yesterday that nine Hurricane fighters saved Liverpool from what might have been a serious bombing attack.

"The Heinkels were flying fast and high to the northeast which would have taken them to the Liverpool area," the account continued. "The Hurricanes at once attacked."

The pilot of one Hurricane said: "When they saw us the Heinkels were getting ready to drop their bombs. We kept chasing after them. One crashed into the sea near Wexford."

"By this time the Heinkels had wheeled right around and were heading back to the south," he added. "Another was badly damaged and it is unlikely to have reached home. When last seen it was lagging well behind the rest. Several more jettisoned their bombs before turning back."

RAILWAY BOMBED

"Raiders taking part in this attack also bombed the railway line on the southern end of the city and started fires close to the main-line junction."

"Meanwhile, at Stuttgart, 360 miles away in Western Germany, other forces of heavy bombers were launching attacks against a large coal-gas plant and the Bosch factory, which produces magnetos, sparkplugs and other electrical equipment for the German services."

"Sticks of heavy-calibre bombs which fell across the gas works caused ten separate explosions, accompanied by brilliant white flashes. The Bosch works, subjected to a fifteen-minute bombardment from varying heights, is also believed to have been heavily hit. A large fire was seen to be blazing in the area as the bombing ceased."

"An aluminum factory at Bitterfeld, twenty miles north of Leipzig, and rail communication centres, were other targets in Germany successfully attacked during the night."

American Pictures Germany as Land of Gloom and Despair

Finds People Unmistakably Sad, Quiet and Weary, With Dead Listlessness Spreading Like Plague
—Are Looking Forward to Terrible Winter

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (CP)—A land of gloom, despair and hunger... a dead listlessness spreading like a plague... Thus Richard O. Boyer, just returned from a 100-day trip through Hitler-conquered Europe, pictures Germany in a copyright article today in PM, New York's new evening newspaper. He visited Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, Italy and Spain.

Boyer, one of the few American correspondents to return from Berlin since the start of the war, arrived in Munich June 28, the day Hitler ordered a ten-day celebration for the defeat of France. Boyer wrote that he found the people of Munich, to his surprise, "unmistakably sad, quiet and weary." A German explained: "We celebrated once in 1914."

DISEASE OF SPIRIT

Boyer added: "But the most surprising development in Germany is that a dead listlessness, akin to the disease of the spirit that caused the collapse of France, is spreading through Germany like a plague, infecting an increasing number of her people with defeatism."

"It must be quickly added, however, that this spirit has not yet infected the army, the Nazi party or the Hitler Youth to any appreciable degree, and it is doubtful if it ever will until there is a military setback."

"For tens of days before I left Berlin I sat in bombproof cellars with the inhabitants of the German capital."

"Never have I seen people with less vim, with more real depression of spirit. It was not fear. It was not the damage being done or the people being killed, for the raids were still small scale compared to those over London."

"It was something far deeper. That something was what gave the

DEATH ENDS LONG ILLNESS

Major J. F. Lennox MacFarlane Passes Away in Ninety-Sixth Year

MAJOR J. F. L. MACFARLANE

One of Victoria's few nonagenarians, Major J. F. Lennox MacFarlane, died yesterday—in his ninety-sixth year—at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he had been a patient for the past several months.

Long a well-known figure in Vancouver Island affairs, Major MacFarlane will be missed by a wide circle of friends. He had been a resident of this province for the past thirty-seven years.

BORN IN IRELAND

Major MacFarlane was born at Mount House, County Dublin, on April 7, 1845, and was educated at the Royal School, Dungannon, and at Trinity College, Dublin. When he took his B.A. in 1866,

A year later he took up a commission in the 3rd (Prince of Wales) Dragoon Guards, became a captain in 1870, and in the early eighties was appointed major of the 3rd Brigade, S.I. Division, Royal Artillery, from which he retired in 1887.

A famous horseman, he took up the breeding of hunters and steeplechasers, and won many steeplechases on horses which he trained and rode himself. He was a magistrate and poor law guardian in Ireland for twenty-two years.

TO CANADA IN 1888

He came to Canada in 1888, and after five years in Alberta came in 1903 to British Columbia. It was in 1907, when he was living in Cobble Hill, that Major MacFarlane started an agitation to have a road constructed out of Victoria to the upper part of the Island.

After personally blazin a trail over a route surveyed by him, he finally succeeded in interesting the Government in the project, and the outcome was the present highway over the Malahat, built with little variation from the route chosen by Major MacFarlane.

SEVEN CHILDREN

He is survived by four sons, Senator H. W. Laird, Conservative, at Burlington, Ont., set the stage today for ascendance of the Liberal party in the Senate for the first time since 1930.

Senator Laird's death created three vacancies—all the vacant seats having been held by Conservatives—and when the present Administration fills them it will have an opportunity to give the Liberal party a majority in the upper chamber.

Senator Laird's death left the Senate standing at Conservatives forty-seven, Liberals forty-six and three vacancies.

When the Government of Prime Minister McKenzie King took office in October, 1935, the Liberals in the Senate totalled twenty-eight less than the Conservatives.

The other two vacancies were created by the death last September 10 of Senator G. A. Gatacre of Montreal, Conservative, and Senator Charles Bourgeois, Conservative, of Three Rivers, Que., last Spring.

SENATE VACANCIES

OTTAWA, Sept. 30 (CP)—Death of Senator H. W. Laird, Conservative, at Burlington, Ont., set the stage today for ascendance of the Liberal party in the Senate for the first time since 1930.

Senator Laird's death created three vacancies—all the vacant seats having been held by Conservatives—and when the present Administration fills them it will have an opportunity to give the Liberal party a majority in the upper chamber.

Senator Laird's death left the Senate standing at Conservatives forty-seven, Liberals forty-six and three vacancies.

When the Government of Prime Minister McKenzie King took office in October, 1935, the Liberals in the Senate totalled twenty-eight less than the Conservatives.

The other two vacancies were created by the death last September 10 of Senator G. A. Gatacre of Montreal, Conservative, and Senator Charles Bourgeois, Conservative, of Three Rivers, Que., last Spring.

PART-TIME TRAINING

It is not only military opinion, but the knowledge born from long experience, that teaches that it is conniving at murder to send troops only partially trained against veteran soldiers. That is why, in a half of the present character and magnitude, all those men who are being raised for service, for home defence or active operations in the field, should be in full training as soon as possible after they volunteer or are called to the colors. This is an exigent era, and there is not as yet in all parts of the Empire the lesson learned from the long years during which the enemy was engaged in the most elaborate preparations yet made for war. It was those preparations which enabled him to overrun Europe to the extent he has, to win victories that were either overwhelming or bloodless. For the British Empire, at least, to a great degree, six of the seven years of the Hitlerian regime were eaten by the locusts.

The War, so far as it has progressed, has taught the outstanding lesson that men who serve on the sea, on land or in the air must be trained to a high pitch of efficiency. The German Army of today does not know the meaning of the words "part-time training". Such a method would be lauded to scorn in the counsels of the High Command. Since, as has so often been said, this War is for all we have and are, it stands to reason that complete training is not only a desirability, but an imperative necessity, if the forces are to be built up at the earliest possible time to defeat the legions of the Totalitarian Powers. That, and their provision with all the modern equipment of war, is simply military common sense. Every member of the British Expeditionary Force evacuated from Dunkirk could tell the Empire the truth of this.

Here in Canada more than half of those in military service are engaged only in part-time training. When the first overseas division, raised in this Dominion for active service, went to England it had to undergo nine months of intensive military training before it was considered fit for the fighting front. Presumably the same condition will apply to any organizations or units that are designed for battle and composed of personnel that, previous to enlistment for active service, had only part-time training. It applies to the N.P.A.M. battalions and to the conscripts shortly to be called to the colors. Volunteers for the war in Europe drawn from these battalions, or from units organized under conscription, whatever may be their part-time training, will have to undergo intensive military, as apart from militia training, as has been the case with the First Division.

Before this War is ended, more, and more, men will be needed in all the services, and the sooner they are ready the sooner hostilities will be brought to a victorious conclusion. Mr. Churchill, Great Britain's Prime Minister, is under no illusions on this score. He knows that the war must be carried into Germany and the enemy defeated in the field if conquered Europe is to be liberated. Part-time training, whatever can be said in its favor, is only a comparatively insignificant contribution towards this end. In the case of this country, specially, and even where that part-time training is designed for the defense of the Dominion, it is not enough. It befriends an official conception that the War is so far away it does not threaten these shores. Moreover, where the majority of the land forces are concerned, there is the admission that what they require is little better than the training given the Militia in times of peace. That is not the true interpretation of what home defence should mean in such perilous times. That defense, as well as attack overseas, calls for men trained to the last ounce.

TECHNIQUE OF THE FIFTH COLUMN

How the "Fifth Column" works is told by a German, Werner Guttman, in Survey Graphic, an American publication. He makes a compilation of the agencies inside and outside the Third Reich, and shows how the task is carried out of penetrating institutions in different countries, "as a prelude to economic, political or military offensives." The author says that while the function of the Fifth Column "is the same all over the world, the methods vary according to the laws of the country as well as the opinions prevailing in its different social classes. The propaganda base from which National Socialism operates consists of two main slogans. The one speaks of the immediate danger of Communism, thus trying to gather all anti-Communist elements under its banner; the other appeals to the masses to free themselves from the Jewish international bankers and warmongers, who are thus branded as enemies of labor."

The writer goes on to tell how every German diplomatic representative abroad is a regional commander of a certain part of the Fifth Column. The Embassy, in the capital of a country, includes representatives of all departments of the Ministry of Propaganda and Information, the Gestapo, and the Ribbentrop Bureau. It assumes the position of a central office in each country. It has under its command representatives of the corresponding departments in the German Consulates and Libraries of Information. Here-in what Herr Guttman says: "Under the supervision of the Ministry for Propaganda and Information are the commercial, cultural and press representatives, while ambassadors and consuls-general are responsible to the Ribbentrop Bureau. Passport Bureau officials of the German Consulates and consults in charge of them are officers of the Gestapo, whose function is to act as liaison officers between the official representatives of Germany and the Fifth Column organizations, at the same time enforcing the orders from Germany."

The Stutzenpunkte (support points) operate throughout the world. They are located near strategic points (communication centres, utility plants, airdromes, main pipelines and overland telephone and telegraph cables). "These support points," the writer says, "may be innocent looking houses, stores, shops or private residences. They are occupied by military experts and officers of the Gestapo and are outfitted with radio receiving and broadcasting sets, apparatus for wire tapping, tools, and flags. Some of the support points serve as arms and ammunition centres only. Only the individual commander is informed of the location of the support points in his area." Hitler and Himmler alone know the locations of all support points throughout the world. In case of a German military invasion, the support points take a leading part in guiding German aircraft and paratroopers."

Germann also uses "exiles forced to flee from the country" as her agents. These pretend to be disgusted with the Nazi regime and work their way into the confidence of people in the countries to which they "flee". Sometimes, Herr Guttman says, they join anti-Nazi organizations in order to spy on their actions. Some get jobs as domestic help with personalities playing important roles in the political, religious and business world of the country, "thereby gaining a chance to spy on their correspondence, private lives and political opinions. Other occupations much sought after by such agents are those of elevator operator or cleaning woman in buildings with important offices or apartments inhabited by important personalities. The reports of these agents are picked up by Gestapo agents and taken to the nearest German Consulates from where they are transferred to the German Embassy. The German Embassy collects and redistributes the reports, separated into "allies", sympathizers, "corruptibles" and "enemies" filed to the German Consulates. Libraries of Information and Department 7 of the Ministry for Propaganda and Information in Berlin. In order to mislead the Immigration authorities of other countries, German "straw agents" are occasionally sent across the borders for the purpose of creating the impression that it is Germany's system to smuggle its agent individually across their frontiers."

The foregoing deals with the operations of the Fifth Column abroad, and is but a small portion of the information assembled by Herr Guttman. What he writes is the most comprehensive summary yet given of Germany's activities in espionage and in propaganda designed to pave the way to military conquest. After what happened in Norway, Belgium and France there is no reason to doubt what Herr Guttman writes. It is, for instance, a matter of common knowledge that this continent is honeycombed with German agents acting under a variety of disguises. Even in this Dominion, now at war with the Third Reich, the most temporizing and temperate attitude has been adopted towards the thousands upon thousands of Germans who are inhabitants of the Dominion. Only a mere handful of enemy aliens has been interned. The number at large to carry on nefarious duties has hardly been affected at all, and there is not a shadow of doubt that many are at work day and night. The fact of naturalization is a part of the technique of espionage. "Once a German, always a German," is the motto of the people of the Teutonic race.

TEMPLE OF LIBERTY

They who consider the freedom of Britons to be only their own concern, discern not the political connections between the different states of mankind. Every nation, that desires to be free, is interested in the fate of Great Britain. There-is erected the Temple of Liberty, where her votaries are animated with the purest flame: there-is her Fortress to which the world is drawn in danger, resort for protection; there-is her last bastion, the muscle, soul, heart to sustain upon the face of the earth. It is no wonder therefore that those Princes, who have fettered their subjects and prepared chains for the rest of mankind, should express their resentment at the power of Great Britain.

WAR WORKERS

Sir,—The Royal Canadian Engineers-Women's Auxiliary would be very grateful if you would allow us to keep in touch with some of the women in Victoria who might be interested.

It was pointed out at our last meeting that we have already a few women, unable for one reason or another to actually belong to any particular group of war workers, who voluntarily offered their services to knit at home for our auxiliary. The suggestion was made that "there might be many other women similarly situated who would be glad to help us fill our Christian boxes for the boys overseas.

In addition to other things, we plan to send such knitted articles

as mittens, skull caps and fingerless mittens. It is necessary, of course, that these be made to certain standards.

We should be very glad if anyone interested would get in touch with the undersigned for further information.

TRAINING UNIT CLOSES SEASON

Summer Schedule of Port Alberni Corps Ends With Smoker and Concert

PORT ALBERNI, Sept. 30.—The summer training schedule of the Alberni District Training Corps was brought to a close Friday night when members of the unit attended a smoker and concert. A plan for winter training on a modified scale was set out. Captain Rev. Glen Stevenson, chaplain, was chairman, and guests included Mayor Hamilton, Bruce Farris, Major R. B. Longridge, and Captain Clarke, staff officers from Work Point Barracks, and a large number of business men.

Addressing the gathering Mr. Farris stated that he hoped Port Alberni would soon have an authorized military unit and that he and others had worked hard for the formation of such a unit. He congratulated the members on their efforts. Major Longridge, in proposing a toast to the British Empire stated that he had been requested to attend the gathering by Brigadier C. V. Stockwell, D.O.C., and that while he was not authorized to make any definite statement, he felt sure that authorization for a military unit in Port Alberni might be made in the Spring. Previous to the meeting Major Longridge inspected the unit which was lined up at the foot of Argyle Street. He congratulated the members on their appearance and tending the events.

Any who are able to assist in this way for the comfort of the patrons are requested to communicate with the hut. One hundred additional chairs can be utilized.

At the Sunday evening concert, Mrs. C. J. Collins acted as pianist throughout the evening, with James McGrath leading in the community singing. The Canadian Legion, Britannia Branch, provided the entertainment, which was very much enjoyed.

Following the entertainment, a social time was spent, with coffee, biscuits and cigarettes provided there.

Rev Father Wood, naval chaplain, was present and concluded the evening with appropriate remarks to the occasion. He recalled the services rendered by Canadians in the last war and urged the members of the forces to again do their duty by the best of service for their King and country. A hearty reception was given Father Wood.

At the Sunday evening concert, Mrs. C. J. Collins acted as pianist throughout the evening, with James McGrath leading in the community singing. The Canadian Legion, Britannia Branch, provided the entertainment, which was very much enjoyed.

Another of the very popular entertainments for the various uniformed forces was held Sunday evening in the Knights of Columbus Canadian Forces Hut at Esquimalt, located at 849 Old Esquimalt Road. Popular have these Sunday evening entertainments become that the committee in charge is making an urgent request for additional folding chairs to accommodate the members of the forces who are attending the events.

Major Hamilton issued a statement that the City Council had set aside a whole block of land with an area of over three acres and this was to be reserved for military purposes such as a drill hall or for any other use which the military authorities may consider it desirable.

Gordon M. Campbell, who formed the unit four months ago and has been in command of it since, gave a brief account of what had taken place during the summer training. The unit consists of six platoons including signallers, with a full complement of N.C.O.'s and officers. A number of parades have been held on various occasions, besides the training parades of two and sometimes three nights each week. With a militia unit stationed in this city, not only would it be used for the purpose of training men, but in case of any emergency arising on the west coast of Vancouver Island it could be moved out and ready for duty in a couple of hours.

CRITICIZES SYSTEM

"I consider it almost useless to train men for thirty or forty days under the present scheme and then promptly dismiss them for a period of a year and lose all contact with them. I believe if these men are called up on a draft, serve their term of thirty or forty days and then had to continue their training with a militia unit two nights a week throughout the year, they would take a greater interest in soldiering and become fairly well trained. This city and surrounding district have a population of over 10,000 persons and in spite of what certain authorities say I consider it a most vulnerable spot. Arrangements are now being made for the formation of a company of the unit at the city of Alberni; for the formation of two companies in Port Alberni and the training of a platoon at Great Central Lake, Sprout Lake and APL Camp. I appreciate the courtesy of Brigadier Stockwell in having Major Longridge here tonight, and I wish to assure him of our full co-operation in any step which he considers advisable in the formation of a unit in this city," Mr. Campbell said.

Denis O'Brien, D.C.M., M.M. who has acted as company sergeant-major during the training period, was called up to speak and expressed his appreciation of having been associated with the members of the unit and hoped that very shortly a hall could be erected for the purpose of winter training.

The concert was brought to a close around midnight with all singing the National Anthem.

"When Schumann composed that piece he was thinking of his fiancee! You play it as if he were thinking of his mother-in-law!"

SAYS HIGHWAYS IN FAIR SHAPE

Hon. C. S. Leary Inspected Provincial Roads in Five Northern Areas

"British Columbia is getting good value for the money it has expended on its roads, and with the exception of some places that need graveling, the highways in the Northern ridings are in pretty fair shape," Hon. C. S. Leary declared yesterday, on his return from an inspection tour of five electoral areas in the North.

Captain Leary visited Lillooet, Cariboo, Fort George, Omineca and Skeena in the course of a three-week tour, which included inspection of new mining roads and trails in the Pinch Creek and Manson Creek areas.

"As far as I am concerned, I am pleased at the general condition of the roads. They are not perfect, but for the money the Province has spent, we have got full value," the Minister of Public Works said.

Hon. W. J. Asselstine, making a tour of mining operations in the North in company with Dr. Charles Camson, was reported yesterday in the Peace River area. He will return to the city in about a week.

Women Well Qualified In Home Nursing Course

St. John Ambulance Reports Large Increase for War Year in Persons Passing Tests for Certificates for First Aid Work

OTTAWA, Sept. 30 (CP) — Fully 500,000 Canadian men and women are qualified first aiders holding St. John Ambulance certificates and higher awards, said the Commandery Commissioner, Col. A. E. Snell, at National Headquarters, Ottawa, in a survey of the year's work.

In the past year, 50,929 persons have qualified for first aid and home nursing awards, an increase of 20,528 over the corresponding period of the previous year.

War has brought changes and given an impetus to the Ambulance Association's activities. Eight thousand more women have taken home nursing courses than last year.

PRECAUTION UNITS

Personnel of the Air Raid Precaution Units which have been operating in the Maritime provinces since the beginning of the war hold certificates for the special course given by the association. A similar organization, the Civilian Defence Committee, which has been set up more recently in other provinces stipulates the same qualifications.

"Not that we are expecting air raids or poison gas attacks, although we give a certain amount of information upon the latter subject," said Col. Snell. "But sabotage of all kinds, the blowing up of bridges or railroads or factories are not such remote possibilities even here in wartime and we want to have competently trained people in every community who could offer immediate aid."

A survey of the work shows that on the whole more men than women avail themselves to the St. John Association services. Many factories, mining companies, the railways and telephone companies now insist that their men be qualified and pay the fees from their training.

GENERAL TRAINING

Col. Snell contended that every man and woman in Canada should be trained. Soldiers are being taught and the Commissioner pointed out its value to a man in the services. "If he knows how to stop hemorrhage, how to give artificial respiration and get air into the lungs of a comrade who has been knocked out and has a mouthful of mud, he will probably save his life before a doctor could get to him," he said.

More than 25,000 people in Canada were certified during the last year by first aid and home service awards.

Those who belong to the "Brigade" which includes all who upon qualification, buy their own black and white uniforms and will submit to a measure of discipline and being called upon for public service at any time, have increased in the past year from 2,773 to 3,300. The total is expected to reach 3,500 by the end of the year.

COUNCIL MEETS

The Oaklands Parent-Teacher Association was host on Friday evening to the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council in the library of the Oaklands School. Mr. P. G. George, recently returned from the British Columbia trustees convention in Nelson, was in the chair. Mrs. M. W. Dawson, who had attended the executive meeting of the British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation in Vancouver recently, was absent owing to illness, but had mailed a detailed report, including the following items:

Arrangements were being made to have eight of all Vancouver clubs tested and glasses provided where necessary at minimum cost; $1.00 interest on home economics fund has been invested in war savings certificates; members were asked to listen to CJOY every Thursday at 12:15. The next two talks will deal with mother and daughter, then father and son relationships. Mrs. Jane P. Leeming had been appointed representative of the British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation at the British Columbia trustees' convention in Nelson. The report from Victoria on prevention of Hallowe'en vandalism, prepared by Mr. Thomas Smith and Mr. L. A. Gordon, has been much appreciated in Vancouver, where it is hoped to introduce bonfires and entertainment for children. A thrift campaign and purchase of $5 or $10 war savings stamps for resale to members were urged. Mrs. Gibson, convener of community standards, reported on the progress being made to suppress the sale of obnoxious literature. With the co-operation of Mayor Lyle Telford, the British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation had persuaded many newsstands not to sell such magazines, for which service they receive a special poster issued by the committee.

Congratulations were extended to Mr. P. E. George on his election as president of the British Columbia School Trustees' Association. In reply, Mr. George gave a brief synopsis of the address by Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir. A letter was read from Mrs. J. L. Gates, asking for books for soldiers to be left at David Spence's.

All-Female Crew Serving in Navy

A naval shore establishment was recently inaugurated somewhere in England with the ceremony usual on such occasions, writes the naval correspondent of The Times (London).

Since everyone in the naval service has to be "borne on the books" of one H.M. ship before they can be subject to naval discipline, naval shore establishments are nominally ships, and the process of starting one of them follows the procedure for commissioning a ship, one item of which is an address by the captain to the ship's company.

In this particular establishment, besides the captain and officers, the only naval personnel—Mr. Herbert will perhaps excuse the term—is the

CHAPTER XXXVI

Norman got up and stood at the fire-place beneath the portrait of her father. "Thanks for telling me about Alan, Edwin," he said slowly. "I haven't helped. I've confused you. I wish I could help to untangle it and it."

"Stay out of it. There's nothing you can do. Helplessness is new to me. I've always been able to cope with problems. But not this. It's Carol and Alan—and you and I back to New York, Edwin. And I like to get away as soon as possible."

"A—kay— Back to the grind and the bright lights to forget. But you won't—two years from tonight you'll still remember the quarry as it was tonight—the storm, the lights going out, her face and everything she said. Sorry, but you will. I'll kiss other girls in the meantime and tell yourself you're getting over Carol beautifully. But you won't."

You once he couldn't appreciate them but that his grandchildren will. Now a lot of grandchildren will."

"You're not sorry . . ."

"Oh, no. More people should do this. I hope the time will come when all people will have—not money or advantage particularly—but the opportunity to do what they want, the kind of work they like, I mean, and to see beautiful things. That's what is lacking for youth-today. I sound like a social worker, don't I? But lately I've thought more about other people, the underprivileged." She paused.

"A. Baker, M. F. Hunter, W. H. Irvine and E. E. Peden, recently elected to the directorate for a two-year term, were welcomed by Mr. Sturges, himself re-elected for two years."

T. M. Little was unanimously named vice-president, and Captain Norman Foster was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

A. Baker, M. F. Hunter, W. H. Irvine and E. E. Peden, recently elected to the directorate for a two-year term, were welcomed by Mr. Sturges, himself re-elected for two years."

Taking the chair, the new president remarked that Mr. Sturges had experienced a difficult year, for in its aim to undertake war work the chamber had been unable to obtain any advice from the Dominion Government as to the course it should adopt. This year the chamber would have to go ahead with whatever programme might be laid down, without waiting for advice from the authorities.

INSTALLATION MEETING

It was decided that new officers should be installed at a membership luncheon meeting in Spencer's dining-room next Tuesday at 12:10 p.m.

Correspondence regarding the Burns collection of reproductions of royal regalia and treasures from the Royal Galleries, Louvre, was informally discussed. It was explained by Captain Foster that this collection had been exhibited in many parts of the world for various charities, and was at present being shown in San Diego. The suggestion was that it should be exhibited in Victoria under the auspices of the Junior Chamber for charitable purposes and the matter was tabled to receive additional information to be obtained.

Council to Discuss Renewal of Lease

—Clubhouse Planned for Willow Park

A recommendation from the Ogden grain elevator for lease to the Gillespie Grain Company for another period of twelve months at an increase of $1,000 in the rental will be made by the lands committee during a City Council meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

At present the company guarantees the city half the profits of operating the plant, with a minimum annual guarantee of $1,000.

Consideration will be given to a letter from the Colwood Park Association asking for a twelve-year re-newal on the lease of the track at Willow Park at $1,500 per year. A deposit of $1,500 accompanies the letter.

If satisfactory, the association intends to erect a two-story, 34 x 50 ft. clubroom on Willow Park, and pay $1,000 per year to the British Columbia Agricultural Association to renew twelve stalls in the stables, payments to continue until 240 are completed.

Greenberg Chief Reason Why Club Finished on Top

Converted Outfielder Led League in Doubles, Homers and Runs Batted In and Finished Second to Williams in Runs Scored—Garms and DiMaggio Are Bat Leaders

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—If you can't understand how Detroit Tigers won the American League pennant, take a look at the season's individual ratings. Hank Greenberg led in doubles, home runs and runs batted in, and finished second to Ted Williams, of Boston, in runs scored. Barney McCauley paced the triple field, and tied with Rip Radcliffe, of the Browns, and the Indians.

HANK GREENBERG Boston's Doc Cramer for the greatest number of hits. Schoolboy Rowe and Buck Newsom finished one-two in pitching performance.

Only in hitting did the Tigers fail to finish first or second. Joe DiMaggio won his second straight batting crown with a .356 average, finishing two points ahead of Luke Appling, White Sox shortstop.

Over in the National League, Cincinnati did not show the marked superiority evinced by their world series rivals.

The Debs Gars, of Pittsburgh, took the baiting championship with a .353 mark, and teammate Arky Vaughan led in runs scored and in triples.

Cincinnati's Frank McCormick trailed Johnny Mize in runs batted in, but tied with Chicago's Stan Hack for most hits and led all rivals in doubles.

Mize, besides taking the runs-batted-in leadership, hit the most homers for the second straight season.

Rainiers Register Easy Victory Over Los Angeles Squad

Seattle Pounds Out Twenty-One Hits for 18-4 Decision to Take Three-to-One Lead in Coast Play-Off—Fists Fly in the Sixth Inning

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30 (AP)—Seattle swamped Los Angeles tonight by a score of 18-4 and took a three-to-one lead in the Pacific Coast League President's Cup play-off.

The Angels used five pitchers and they all looked alike to the Rainiers, who won the championship in the regular playing season. Seattle collected twenty-one hits and was aided by six errors as the Los Angeles infield went to pieces.

Six thousand fans cheered wildly as a fight broke out between the players in the sixth inning when Pitcher Jack Fallon, of Los Angeles, rushed Coach Eddie Taylor, of the Seattle nine.

The squabble was settled without material damage to anyone but the Angel club, which blew up and let the Rainiers score eight runs in the eighth. A double-header will be played tomorrow night.

Seattle had scored three runs in the sixth inning for a 9-2 lead when Fallon rushed off the mound after Coach Eddie Taylor, of the Rainiers. Collins stepped in to hold off Taylor. In no time the entire Seattle club was out of the dugout to defend the coach, who had been riding Fallon. Angel supporters also rushed in and Umpires Ray Snyder and Bill Engels were caught in the milling throng.

For the most part it was a push-pull contest as the fans howled with satisfaction. When would-be combatants were separated and the boys had been pacified, Stutz took Fallon out of the game and sent in Tomas, who got the side out.

Seattle made it 10-2 in the seventh on Gyselman's homer. The contest lapsed into a comedy of errors in the eighth as the Rainiers batted around. Seattle scored eight runs in this frame, driving both Thomas and Berry Jo to the showers. The Rainiers got six hits and were helped along by four errors. Strata finally got the side out after twelve men had had their turn.

Crew Members of Freighter Killed By Enemy Gunfire

HALIFAX, Sept. 30 (CP)—Austin McNeil, twenty-year-old Halifax youth, was killed along with sixteen other members of the crew of the 5,200-ton British steamship Haxby by enemy gunfire, according to a letter received today by his father, D. J. McNeill, here.

The letter came from the ship's agent, Sir R. Ropner & Company, Ltd., Stockton-on-Tees. It did not disclose details.

On July 6, the British Admiralty announced the British submarine Truant stopped a German prison ship disguised as a Norwegian freighter and rescued part of the Haxby's crew from it after the freighter was scuttled by the Nazis.

He carried a crew of six West Country sailors, all past military age.

DEATH SUMMONS RAIL OFFICIAL

C.P.R. Commissary Agent At Sicamous Passed Away Here on Sunday

Robert Lund Lowe, better known as "Bob" Lowe, commissary agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway's purchasing department at Sicamous, died here on Sunday while en route to his son, R. B. Lowe, Jr., an officer in the British Columbia Dragoons, who is taking training here. Mrs. Lowe, who accompanied him to Victoria from Sicamous, was with him at the time.

R. L. Lowe, who was fifty-nine years old, entered Canadian Pacific Railways service in the dining-car department at Winnipeg in 1912, and in December, 1915, transferred to the purchasing department. He went to Sicamous as commissary agent for the purchasing department, October 1, 1916, and has remained there since.

Widely known as a great friend of the Okanagan Valley, at the north entrance to which he made his headquarters, "Bob" Lowe was formerly a member of the Vernon Rotary Club, and took active part in the affairs of this community and other Okanagan centres. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge of Armstrong, B.C.

KIOSK ERECTED

Through his efforts and with aid from boards of trade in the Okanagan, the kiosk on the station platform at Sicamous, so familiar to travellers passing through the Shuswap Lake region, was erected and maintained as a show window in which are displayed the Okanagan's fabulous fruit, vegetables, and other farm produce.

A sufferer from asthma for the past two decades, the way in which he carried on his work efficiently and successfully was an inspiration to those who knew him. He was considered one of the Okanagan's best friends.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 3 o'clock attended by W. W. Roberta, general purchasing agent of the Canadian Pacific, who reached Vancouver yesterday from the East. Interment will be made in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

He is survived by Mrs. Lowe, at Sicamous, and their son, R. L. Lowe, Jr., now an army officer, but formerly of The Penticton Herald's editorial staff, and one brother, A. B. Lowe, Seville, Ontario.

Parson Navigator Retells Story of Long Sea Passage

Rev. John Antle, parson navigator, who recently completed a thirteen-month passage from England to Victoria aboard the yacht Reverie, retold some of the more important highlights of his seafaring experiences during the long trip to a large gathering of local yachtsmen and their friends at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, Cadboro Bay, last evening.

Mr. Antle took his listeners from Falmouth down to Puncal, across the Atlantic to the West Indies Islands, where he cruised for some time, through the Panama Canal and up the Pacific Coast of North America to British Columbia waters.

UNFURLS NEW FLYING FLAG

Air Marshal Bishop Displays New R.C.A.F. Emblem Somewhere in England

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 30 (CP)—Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., today unfurled the new Royal Canadian Air Force flag, which flew for the first time in England when he visited a Canadian air-cooperation quadron in this beautiful rolling country.

The flag, similar to that of the Royal Air Force, is blue with a Union Jack in the upper lefthand corner, but in place of the familiar red dot on a white background inside a darker blue ring has a red maple leaf.

The flag was designed in Canada.

Air Marshal Bishop flew here—the first time in the air for the former war ace since he reached Britain last week—with Squadron Leader Bert Evans, Winnipeg. The journey took the Canadian V.C. over part of the London area, including the Air Defence zone, which nightly roars defiance at Goering's air force.
